WHICH?

"The people of the State of Ohio ought to blush for their legislature." Thus spoke Senator Archer as in disgust he left the conference committee of his party, who were giving the finishing touches to the infamous code bill.

The great State of Ohio is in a fair way to become "an astonishment, a proverb, and a by-word" among the sisterhood of states, because of the puerile manner in which her legislators have trifled with a singular opportunity for the exercise of a high degree of constructive statesmanship, when they failed to provide for all the cities and villages of the State a municipal code of the most advanced type, that would eagerly have been studied as a model by future code-makers of other States, and when they, instead, saddled upon our long-suffering communities an antiquated and vicious form of government.

Under such circumstances it must be particularly refreshing to all citizens who have the welfare of their State and city at heart to realize that this disgraceful piece of legislation is not the only thing with which their State has burst into national prominence, but that she has to her credit also a movement in the direction of an advanced democracy and republicanism, and is at present leading the van-guard in the fight for popular government.

In Mr. Johnson this cause has found a leader of exceptional ability and high motives.

The campaign which he is personally conducting has been something out of the ordinary and a vast improvement upon past methods. There has been no lack of vigor in the campaign. An unrelenting warfare has been waged against injustice and wrong, particularly against entrenched privilege. At the same time there has been manifested an unusual degree of fairness towards those who have either through ignorance or self-interest opposed this movement.

A feature of the campaign has been

Mr. Johnson's oft repeated invitation to his opponents to discuss the questions of home rule and equal taxation or any other questions of public interest upon his platform, and his invitation to the general public to ask any questions they would like to have answered. The uniform courtesy with which even the most unfriendly questions were received and the seriousness with which they were discussed and answered contrasted very favorably with the custom of so many political speakers who try to turn the laugh of derision on anyone who might have the temerity to express an idea at variance with their own.

The marked appreciation which the public have shown for the style of campaign which Mr. Johnson has inaugurated leads us to hope that it may become more and more prevalent in the future and that the public will take a more active part in the discussion of the questions which so closely concern them. Heretofore they have frequently been expected to confine themselves to the applause.

We are sorely in need of a public forum from which the bigotry and rancor of partisanship shall be debarred and where the vital questions of government are examined from the standpoint of the citizen to whom the public welfare is the first and greatest consideration and to whom party interests appeal only in so far as they are identified with the public good.

In this connection it is to be deeply deplored that, in reporting the Johnson tent meeting at this place, the Akron edition of a Cleveland paper should in a glaring headline give an absolutely false impression of this meeting to people who did not attend and were, therefore, not in a position to form an opinion of their own. The article in question averred that Mr. Johnson, in a fit of anger, had called a man a liar in the open meeting, who had asked him a question reflecting upon his integrity. This is an unpardonable slur upon a meeting that bore the dignified character of the one in question, upon which a host of estimable citizens passed the verdict, "It was the best political meeting I ever attended."

We do not wish to charge the paper indicated with willful and malicious misrepresentation and are willing to assume that the mistake was due to a misunderstanding. Having, in one of his replies to questions, had reference to a point in law, Mr. Johnson addressed the questioner, whose voice he said he had recognized, by saying, "and you are a lawyer, and you know it."

When this remark by the Mayor was given in the Cleveland paper the word "lawyer" appeared as "lar," thus placing an entirely erroneous and unfair report upon his statement. We have been waiting for the paper in question to make some amendment of its report, as it has been requested to do by Mayor Johnson's friends, but to this day no correction has appeared, and it is due to the Mayor that he be set at right in the matter.

John McNamara is a practical business man who will not spend his own money, much less the money of the taxpayers, foolishly. When he makes presents he does it in a practical way, as was evidenced last Christmas, but he does not believe in making presents of contracts and "grabs" to political or other favorites or to any one at the public's expense.

The proposition that, all other things being equal, the gifts of the people should go to the old soldiers applies with singular force in the case of "Honest Bob" Andrew, candidate for County Treasurer. Early in the war he gave up a profitable position to become a soldier of the Union and remained as such throughout the long struggle.

It was by square dealing and courtesy to all that E. L. FILLIUS built up a business in Hudson which has made that town proud of him. The same methods made him one of the best County Commissioners Summit ever had. They will be followed also by Mr. FILLIUS in the Sheriff's office.

The old saying that money makes friends may be true, but when misfortune overtook "Ab" Paige his friends did not desert him. It was the man who made the friends in that case and they are his friends still.

James H. Burt is known throughout Summit county as an honest, hard-working man, a veteran of the Civil war and a safe man in whatever position he may be placed. He deserves the election as Recorder.

Ask any citizen of Manchester or vicinity what he thinks of Dr. C. J. Hays, the Democratic candidate for Coroner. No man stands higher in his own community.

Did William E. Young stand for the interests of the people of Akron when Mayor of the city? Ask the Citizens' Committee of Fifty.

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period—how to avoid pain and suffering and remove the cause by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"To YOUNG WOMEN:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like another person since I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have added 12 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy."—Miss AGNES MILLER, 25 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The monthly sickness reflects the condition of a woman's health. Anything unusual at that time should have prompt and proper attention. Fifty thousand letters from women prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regulates menstruation and makes those periods painless.

READ WHAT MISS LINDBECK SAYS:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has greatly benefited me. I will tell you how I suffered. My trouble was painful menstruation. I felt as each month went by that I was getting worse. I had severe bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen.

"A friend advised me to try Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I did so and am now free from all pain during my periods."—JESSIE C. LINDBECK, 1201 6th Street, Rockford, Ill.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice has restored to health more than one hundred thousand women. Why don't you try it, my sick sisters?

"WHOA, THERE!"

Yelled Mr. Anthony, as Mr. McCarty Was About to "Kick."

(Special Correspondence.)

Barberton, Oct. 21.—A sensation was sprung in the Barberton Council last evening. It was near the close of the session. There was a hum of low conversation and a motion to adjourn seemed in order. Then came the "extraordinary."

"Mr. President," The words came slowly and deliberately. President Baker looked up with a start. "I have a kick to register against the Northern Ohio Traction Co." The words almost caused several of the Councilmen to fall from their chairs. The speaker was Mr. McCarty. Councilman Marc Anthony was the first to recover.

"Whoa, there! Steady on the left!" he shouted, as if he expected to see his brother Councilman register a physical kick against some one's anatomy.

"I rode on a car the other night that had a split seat," continued Mr. McCarty. "And last Saturday night a conductor failed to run the Erie crossing. His car was filled with passengers and at least ordinary precaution should be taken."

"If the old cars are smashed, we might get new ones," said Mr. Anthony.

WASTE OF TIME.

Barberton Already Has the Ordinance Council Wanted.

(Special Correspondence.)

Barberton, O., Oct. 21.—It has developed that the action of the Council on Oct. 13, directing the City Solicitor and Ordinance committee to draw up an ordinance for the revoking of the N. O. T. Co.'s franchise on all streets not now used by that company, was a waste of time and words, both of which the Council seems to have in great plenty. Solicitor Baker stated last night at the Council meeting that such an ordinance had been passed in 1900 when Attorney Ammerman was City Solicitor. The ordinance, he stated, is in the nature of a protest against the company if they should ever attempt to lay tracks on those streets.

DREAMING.

[For the Democrat.]

I had a dream at midnight,
While the soft rain drifted down;
I thought of host of White Wings
Invaded the sleeping town.
In snowy suits and helmets,
With their shovels they were seen,
And when they had departed, oh
The streets were clean.

But I woke, and sadly pondered,
What shall the city do?
Shall she seek a modern Hercules
To turn a river through?
To divert the fair Cuyahoga
From her banks of sunny green?
But we wouldn't know our city,
If the streets were clean.

It will be a pity for the city, when, after having bought a new site and built a new city hall, it is compelled to give up the present fine quarters now in use as a stable for the automobile patrol.

The Man of the Hour, being left very much alone by his party organization, probably has time to figure out some brand new crusades to promise the people in case of re-election. "Clean Streets" is a defunct slogan.

Here is a problem for High school pupils: If taxpayers are promised that a jail will be built for $65,000, and the cost turns out to be $125,000, what will be the cost of a court house promised at an expense of $300,000.

of the stock of a company beyond the value of the property, originated, it is said, in connection with Daniel Drew, who was one of the wealthiest and most unique manipulators in Wall street. Drew had been a drover in his younger days and it was said of him that before selling his cattle in the market he would first give them large quantities of salt to make them thirsty and then provide them with all the water they could drink. In this way their weight was greatly increased and the purchaser was buying "watered stock."—Leslie's Weekly.

NOT A CRIME

For Street Commissioner to Clean Barberton Streets Now.

(Special Correspondence.)

Barberton, O., October 21.—It matters not whether it has been a crime in the past to clean the city's streets or not. The Street Commissioner was instructed last night by the Council to clean Second st. and Tuscarawas ave. as far as they are paved. Councilman Miller, who saved the mud last week, voted with the others to have the streets cleaned. Councilman Anthony, the most ardent champion of clean streets, stated that the merchants along these streets had agreed to help keep the streets clean if the city once restored them to their normal condition.

(Special Correspondence.)

Barberton, Oct. 21.—While most of the city officials will have to wait until February for their salaries, Sanitary Policeman Brown is more fortunate. He will draw his salary from the street and sanitary fund, instead of the general fund as formerly. Councilman McCarty kicked against this and "made a point" or two, but the other Councilmen could not see it after his fashion and his kick was relegated to that class known as "also rans."

That is the result of a course of treatment with Scott's Emulsion. We have special reference to persons with weak lungs and sensitive throats.

Scott's Emulsion does some things better than others. This is one of them. It has a peculiar action on the throat and lungs which gives them strength and makes them tough. That's how Scott's Emulsion drives out coughs, colds and bronchitis. It keeps them out, too.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
